

June 7 Check-In with Levannia and Aditya Minutes

Short meeting today.

We asked if they want us to give them the generated preprocessed csv's or just the notebooks to create them themselves. They would like both.

We asked if they would like to do a code review on Friday. We will do a rough one with Levannia, then, and a full one with Aditya the following Tuesday. We need to send Levannia the requirements.txt file by Thursday.

If it's not too much work, it would be useful for them if we can set up our directories and data so it can be downloaded and run without changing any paths.

In our code base we hand over to them, they would like the code from iteration 1 in an archive file for their records.

After yesterday's data review meeting, someone messaged Levannia mentioning some additional return codes that are looked for when trying to find pin contacts. Not mentioned here for confidentiality reasons.

Levannia and Aditya would like to attend the final presentation. They are very impressed and excited by the work that we have done on this project. Overall, they are satisfied with the progress we have made and are happy for us to wrap up a final few things and then start the process of writing our report
